FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

Gladstone Warmly Greeted at Manchester.

Parliament Prorogued--The Queen's Speech.

The French Radical Press on Paris' Manifesto.

Gladstone at Manchester.

MANCHESTER, England, June 25.—Gladstone addressed the electors of Manchester this afternoon in Free-Trade hall. He spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. Gladstone was received at Manchester with great enthusiasm, thousands being assembled at the railway station to welcome him, and the streets were literally packed.

When Gladstone appeared on the stage the whole house arose in one outburst of enthusiasm. The cheering lasted three minutes. Gladstone began by lamenting that the Irish question had been so much associated with doubt in the present controversy. This resulted in many losses to the government. None of these had caused him such pain as the loss of John Bright. Of course government opponents would not now let Bright alone. He was too valuable a man. After again challenging Chamberlain to produce his land scheme by the side of which the government scheme would dwindle into insignificance, and again challenging Earl Carnarvon to divulge what he said to Parnell, and whether he informed Lord Salisbury of the interview, he said in conclusion that the Irish demands were reasonable and moderate; and that their opponents had been ungenerous. The examples of other countries in Europe showed the wisdom of the government's policy. He appealed to the men of Manchester, who are ever in front of the progressive movement, to keep true to their traditions. Not even opponents believed that they could prevent the granting of home rule to Ireland. All they could do was to cause delay until home rule was extorted from them.

English Politics.

LONDON, June 25.—John Bright has written for public use a letter to Peter Rylands, liberal unionist, to aid him in securing re-election. In this letter Bright says he hopes Rylands will be successful in carrying the Burnley district, and adds, "What your opponents think an error may prove patriotism and wisdom. It is grievous to see how liberals treat liberals whose only fault lies in their support of the principles liberals accepted a year ago. Honesty and capacity seem of small value compared to suppleness which permits and enables members to turn their backs upon themselves whenever their great leader changes his mind on any course."

Gladstone in a letter regretting his inability to address the electors of Chester says: "The tory policy of twenty years of coercion for Ireland is more rational and contains more promise of being effectual than any one of the intermediate and fantastic schemes which have come to birth under the exigencies of the election, and the Duke of Westminster recently said it was time for the liberals to put their country before their party. This is the first that I tried to do when I made known to the Marquis of Salisbury my desire to support him when he was prime minister if he should introduce a comprehensive measure of reform for the government and peace of Ireland in conformity with, as we now know them, the views then entertained by his own lord lieutenant."

Parliament Prorogued.

LONDON, June 24.—Parliament was prorogued to-day. Following is the queen's speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

I have determined to release you from your high duties before the full accomplishment of the regular work of the session in order to ascertain the sense of my people on an important proposal to establish a legislative body in Ireland for the management of Irish as distinguished from imperial affairs. With this object it is my intention to dissolve parliament. I continue to happily maintain the most friendly relations with foreign powers. I have the satisfaction to acquaint you with the fact that the warlike operations of Servia against Bulgaria have been brought to a close through the wise counsel of the powers and the forbearance of the sultan; and also after a period of anxiety of the adoption of pacific counsels by Greece the disarming of the Greece force is now in progress. It has removed serious danger to the peace of Europe. The state of affairs in Egypt has improved. I have been enabled to materially reduce my force in that country and to bring it within the southern limits of Egypt proper. I have concluded an arrangement with Spain which if adopted by the cortes will, I trust, increase our commercial intercourse with Spain and also encourage the importation of colonial wines. I have felt a lively pleasure in promoting the exhibition of the products of manufacture and art of my colonial and Indian dominions which is now being held in the metropolis.

The Exiled Princes.

PARIS, June 25.—The French radical press point to the Count of Paris' manifesto as a proof of the dangerous character of the man as a resident of the republic. They say the manifesto completely unmasks his true character as a conspirator. Three of the late councillors and Count de Pourtales, third secretary of the French embassy at London, have resigned because of the expulsion of the princes.

LONDON, June 25.—The queen has telegraphed an expression of sympathy to the Count of Paris.

Railroad Troubles.

CHICAGO, June 25.—At a general meeting of switchmen to-night it was decided that the Switchmen's Union will take up the cause of the Lake Shore strikers. Railroad managers having pledged themselves to act as a unit this course on the part of the switchmen creates great apprehension.

The Rock Island, Burlington and Northwestern roads have joined in the movement to cut freight rates to Council Bluffs and Omaha. They put into effect the following rates: First class, 50 cents per one hundred pounds; 2d class, 40 cents; 3d class, 25 cents; 4th class, 15 cents, and 5th class 10 cents.

The Water Works Convention.

DENVER, June 25.—The American Water Works association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, B. F. Jones, Kansas City; first vice president, W. L. Cameron, Memphis, Tenn.; second vice president, H. G. Holden, Lowell, Mass.; third vice president, J. M. Deven, Elmira, N. Y.; fourth vice president, W. J. Miller, Birmingham, Ala.; secretary and treasurer, J. H. Decker. After accepting an invitation from the Milwaukee Water Works company to hold the next annual meeting in that city the convention adjourned.

Green Convicted.

DENVER, June 25.—The case of the negro Andy Green, charged with murdering J. C. Whitnah, a Broadway street car driver, on the night of May 10th, while attempting to rob the money box on the car, was concluded and given to the jury at 5.30 this evening. An hour later the jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. Edgar Caypless, attorney for Green, gave notice that he would file a motion for a new trial.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Governments dull, ⅛ lower for 4½s. There was no news this morning to affect stocks with the exception of some from Chicago which was entirely of an unfavorable nature and referred principally to the strike on the Lake Shore and the probability of its spreading to other roads, and also renewed the information of cuts in freight rates between roads in that region. The market closed rather heavy near the best prices of the day. There was at no time more than moderate business, but buying continued steadily throughout the day.

The Mail and Express says: Mining shares were dull, but strong. Savage sold at 2.15, Yellow Jacket 1.05, Silver King 5 to 5⅛, Bodie 1.40, Plymouth 13⅞, La Crosse 9, Bulwer 1.50.

Slugging with Gloves.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 25.—In a contest to-night between Patsy Cardiff and Billy Wilson, seven rounds, Queensbury rules, six-ounce gloves, the fight was awarded to Cardiff on points. Both men were in splendid training. Wilson had changed the tactics since the last fight, which confused Cardiff for the first two rounds, but he soon adapted himself to the changed conditions. Finding he could not lead Wilson to exhaust himself by forcing the fighting he crowded him to the ropes, and once forced him head first from the platform, but Wilson quickly recovered and came up. Finishing, there was some hard hitting done on both sides, but neither showed severe punishment, both having been trained down closely. Considerable money changed hands and over 3000 people witnessed the fight, which was at Exposition hall.

The Poisoned Ice Cream.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 25. Dr. V. C. Vaughan in examining a specimen of the ice cream which recently poisoned a number of persons at Newton, Mich., has made the important discovery that tyrotoxicon, the active element in poisonous cheese which he discovered some time since, was also present in the ice cream and was the cause of the sickness. This proves that tyrotoxicon is due to the decomposition of milk and may developed in any milk which is kept in an impure atmosphere or unclean vessels. The germ seems to multiply rapidly and a small amount of tainted milk will poison the whole. It is Dr. Vaughan's theory that tyrotoxicon has much to do with cholera infantum, the symptoms of which are similar to the symptoms of cheese poisoning.

A Priest's Crime.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 25. Rev. John E. Sullivan was last night found guilty by a jury of criminal assault on Abbie O'Connor at the Catholic parsonage in Camillus in May, '84. The trial has been in progress three days and excited great interest in Catholic and other circles. The evidence was of a sensational character. This morning Judge Kennedy sentenced him to eleven years in Auburn prison. Stay of proceedings for a week was granted, during which time he will be confined in Onondaga penitentiary in this city.

A Great Oil Fire.

PEORIA, June 25.—The warehouse of the Consolidated Tank Line in this city, containing 40,000 gallons of oil, caught fire this afternoon and communicated with the freight house of the Peoria & Pekin Union railway near, and this was also burned, together with 30 cars and a large quantity of freight. The total loss will approximate $200,000. The Peoria & Pekin Union railway carries a total insurance of $250,000, and the loss will be adjusted in the proportion that the property destroyed bears to the whole.

A Colliery Horror.

PARIS, June 25.—Twenty-four men were killed and 16 entombed alive to-day by an explosion in a colliery at Rochelle in the department of Soane.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Cleveland Finishes his Vetoes and Takes a Cruise.

Chas. Francis Adams Replies to Henley's Charges.

Fitz John Porter's Bill Again Goes to the President.

The President's Labors.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Yesterday was probably the busiest day the president has had since his inauguration; devoted almost entirely to the consideration of pension cases. During the day he acted on 118 private pension bills. After giving each case thorough personal examination thirty bills were vetoed and eighty-eight approved. He also approved the bill reimbursing Edwin Stevens, United States consul at Ningpo, China, for extraordinary expenses incurred during the Franco-Chinese war. The bill for the relief of Richard T. Wintersmith, late doorkeeper of the house, was allowed to become law without the president's signature. The president wrote the veto messages himself without assistance by dictation or otherwise. They make about fifty pages of closely written foolscap. Indeed, it is stated that the president has personally written every message that has issued from the White house during his administration.

Mr. Adams' Defense.

BOSTON, June 25.—President Charles Francis Adams of the Union Pacific, against whom charges of dishonesty were made in the house of representatives June 5th by Congressman Henley of California, was to-day shown a Washington dispatch detailing the controversy on the subject between Mr. Henley and ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts, in the house yesterday. After asserting that Governor Long's statement was a just one and that Mr. Henley had done him a gross injustice, Mr. Adams said: At the time the Union Pacific board of directors issued $5,000,000 of five per cent collateral trust bonds, it was in April, 1883, I was not even a director in the company. Mr. Henley's second charges that I and the directors violated the law in paying the dividends of 1883 and 1884 despite the existence of a gross floating debt of $13,000,000 is not well founded, for it is not illegal to pay dividends while there is a floating debt. My company has paid all the money due the government under the Thurman act as fast as the courts have determined disputes as to its being due. I had not been a director of the Union Pacific for three years at the time that its endorsement was placed without the consent of congress on $15,000,000 of the Oregon Short Line bonds. In addition to this, as Mr. Long has stated, the courts have held the transaction to be legal. It is nonsense for Henley to claim that assets belonging to the government have been criminally diverted to anticipate a premium of 13 per cent third mortgage bonds due in 1889, for there are no third mortgage bonds of the Union Pacific company.

Cleveland's Cruise.

WASHINGTON, June 25. The president left Washington about one o'clock to-day for a cruise down the Potomac and Chesapeake bay in the steam yacht Corsair, of New York, brought here expressly for that purpose. He was accompanied by Postmaster General Vilas, Representative Scott, of Pennsylvania, and Wilson L. Bissel, of Buffalo. The party are well equipped with fishing tackle, and make the trip for pleasure and recreation. It is possible that a short stop will be made at Fortress Monroe and that the cruise may extend past the capes into the ocean. The party expect to return to Washington to-morrow night.

XLIX Congress.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 25. The chair laid before the senate a telegraphic memorial from the Portland, Ore., board of trade in opposition to Van Wyck's amendment to the Northern Pacific forfeiture bill as passed by the senate. The petitioners said that with that amendment in it the bill will make it impossible for the Northern Pacific Railroad company to secure capital wherewith to complete the Cascade branch which is necessary to the commerce of the northwest. The amendment referred to is that which forfeits lands co-terminus with the uncompleted portion of the Cascade branch. The bill having been already passed the petition was laid on the table.

The senate then took up the Fitz John Porter bill and Logan addressed the senate. Logan opened with an objection to the bill on constitutional points. The bill he said provided for an increase of the number of persons on the retired list of the army, provided the president appointed certain persons to the place. If he could not make that special application the vacancy was not to exist. Where did the senate get the power to name to the president the person whom he should appoint to an office? Where did the house of representatives get any power to name to the president the person whom he should nominate to an office? Of course if the senators were determined to ram the bill down the throats of others they must take the responsibility. Logan did not expect his words to have any weight in the senate for he always noticed that when the senate was determined to do a thing it turned a deaf ear to everything else whether law or fact interfered with its purpose. This case was not the trial of Porter. Porter had been tried and condemned. This was a trial of Abraham Lincoln, of James A. Garfield and many brave and distinguished officers of the army. Logan asserted that Porter was the cause of the first Bull Run defeat by persuading Patterson to retreat from Winchester with 30,000 men. "As God is my judge," said he, "I would stand over the dust of Lincoln and swear by all the gods to his act as being an honest and just one." Logan had pride in the army and in its glory, and before he would drag into the dust the name of Abraham Lincoln for the sake of this criminal he would let his tongue become paralyzed; yet republican senators here are willing to vote to give $3000 a year to a man who was a traitor to his commander, so if men wanted to be paid liberally by the United States they had only to be treacherous when they should be true. "If you are true when you might be treacherous you are vetoed." "That," said Logan, "is a strange thing to take place in this country."

Plumb in opposing the bill said the reinstatement of Fitz John Porter was the beginning of an attempt to rewrite the history of the union army, to put that which was disloyal and unfaithful above that which was loyal and faithful. Plumb said he had just been informed that the president had vetoed a bill giving a pension of $50 a month to the widow of Major General Hunter who had been the presiding officer of the court martial that had tried Fitz John Porter. That seemed a fitting accompaniment for the passage of the Fitz John Porter bill, but the loyal people of the country would see to it that Mrs. Hunter should not suffer. Plumb offered an amendment to place Mrs. Hunter on the pension roll at $50 per month.

Lost; yeas 19, nays 29.

Logan offered an amendment to place on the retired list every volunteer officer who received wounds producing total disability. Rejected; yeas 18, nays 29.

The bill was then brought to a vote and passed, yeas 30, nays 17. The bill having already passed the house, and not having been amended by the senate, now goes to the president for his signature.

Plumb called up the house bill to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by congress to aid in the construction of railroads within the state of Kansas and for the forfeiture of unearned lands, and the senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

Immediately after reading of the journal the speaker laid before the house various veto messages yesterday transmitted by the president. They were read by the clerk and severally referred to the committee on pensions or invalid pensions.

On motion of Hatch of Missouri senate amendments to the agricultural appropriation bill were non-concurred in, and Hatch, Winans and Price were appointed conferees.

On the motion of Bragg of Wisconsin a joint resolution was passed appointing Gen. Wm. J. Sewell of New Jersey, General Martin McMahone of New York and Capt. J. L. Mitchell of Wisconsin to fill vacancies on the board of managers of national homes for disabled volunteers.

The house then went into committee of the whole, Mr. Reagan of Texas in the chair, on the sundry civil bill.

Bland offered an amendment to the silver certificate amendment adopted yesterday to place the small certificates on the same footing as the larger ones already issued.

Bayne opposed the amendment and regretted that he had not been here yesterday to make a point of order against the original amendment.

McMillan of Tennessee objected to silver certificates being characterized as shin plasters. They had silver dollars back of them, which might be exchanged for them at the pleasure of the holder. He was getting sick and tired of hearing gentlemen berate the silver dollar. It was a currency good enough for Abraham and for Christ and for the father of the republic.

Bland's amendment was then adopted.

There was a short debate upon the coast survey clauses of the bill and this was followed by a discussion of the internal revenue paragraphs.

Townshend, of Illinois, offered an amendment increasing from $25,000 to $50,000 the appropriation for detection of persons guilty of violating internal revenue laws and for the payment of informers. Rejected.

On motion of Gibson of West Virginia the paragraph containing the appropriation was stricken from the bill.

Mr. Ermentrout of Pennsylvania offered an amendment providing that $3000 of the appropriation for recoinage of gold and silver coin shall be expended in recoining dollar for dollar into silver dollars or subsidiary coins trade dollars which may be presented at the various mints six months after the passage of this act.

Pending action the committee rose.

After discussing the president's pension vetoes at some length, and the conduct of the pension bureau under Commissioner Black coming in for criticism and defense, without transacting any business the house adjourned.

DENVER, June 25. The second game between the Denver and St. Joseph clubs this afternoon resulted in a score of 16 to 5 in favor of Denver. Denver made 11 runs in the first inning. In the address of the queen proroguing parliament, the frequent use of the pronoun "I" sounds queer, considering how little power the queen has and how little she does It is well however to hold on to the theory.

Italy has produced many very noble men in her history. But somehow we have ceased to expect any more saints The Tablet however tells of a new Savonarola who has just been preaching with wonderful power at Pisa He is a poor Franciscan brother by the name of Agostino di Montefeltro The following from the Tablet is a good description of him

During his course at Pisa, public life was, as it were, suspended Work ceased as on feast days, lawyers, men of business and workmen left their occupations to go and hear him Lectures, even those of free-thinking professors, were not given, in order to allow the students to assist at the sermons And these thousands of hearers, composed of all classes of society, hanging on his lips, shed involuntary tears, and beside themselves with admiration, broke out, notwithstanding the sanctity of the church into cries of applause This humble Franciscan monk unites in himself all that the world admires—the faith of the apostles the wisdom of the doctors, the eloquence of the fathers, and the piety of the saints

Gladstone's close of the debate on the home rule bill has reminded one paper of the close of another great speech of his It was the end of the debate on the franchise bill in 1866 when he prophesied as follows

We stand with it now, we may fall with it a short time hence and if we do we shall rise with it hereafter. I shall not attempt to measure with precision the forces that are to be arrayed in the coming struggle Perhaps the great division of to-night is not the last that must take place in the struggle You may possibly succeed at some point of the contest. You may drive us from our seat. You may bury the bill that we have introduced, but for its epitaph we will write upon its gravestone this line with certain confidence in its fulfilment

'Exoriare aliquis nostris ex ossibus ultor

You cannot fight against the future Time is on our side. The great social forces which move on in their might and majesty, and which the tumult of our debates does not for a moment impede or disturb those great social forces are against you, they are marshalled on our side, and the banner which we now carry, though perhaps at this moment it may sink over our drooping heads, yet it soon again will float in the eye of heaven, and it will be borne in the firm hands of the united people of the three kingdoms, perhaps not to an easy, but to a certain and to a not distant victory

The circumstances of the last speech were parallel. Both were before defeat Both expressed faith in ultimate success We believe that the faith he has now will be justified, as after events justified his former faith

The Saloon in Politics

Howard in Boston Globe

John Barleycorn is very active, but under pretense of helping us to brace up he does an immensity of harm It costs $ 5,000 000 to govern London with a population of 4,500 000, and it costs $ 35 000 000 to govern New York with a population of 1 500 000 The e figures show that we are rapidly drifting into a condition of affairs which will give our city, if it is not already given bodily into the possession of the gang of robbers who are living upon public plunder

That there is work for honest reformers needs not further demonstration, but if efforts for reform are to be effectual they must be thorough as well as honest They must go down to the very root of the evil Now, where and what is that root? Why and how is it made possible that corruption, such as is indicated by the figures I have given should exist? It comes from the fact that sixty per cent of our primaries are held in liquor saloons or rooms adjacent thereto In places where the better class of our citizens will not be seen And I assert they are held in these places for the very purpose of excluding this class If gentlemen would attend the primaries the fountain head from which emanates all that enters into governmental processes, we might hope for honest government But gentlemen will not attend them while they are held in groggeries Here, then is the root of the evil Here lies the whole trouble, and if reformers mean to effect anything they will bend all efforts toward a disconnection of election primaries and liquor saloons When this is done, when respectable citizens can take part in the primaries, then may we hope to see such citizens accepting public positions, and perhaps it may be demonstrated that this city can be governed for something less than $35,000 000

The Painter and the 'Bus Driver

W Holman Hunt, in the Contemporary Review

I was now painting steadily at 'The Light of the World" The window which had before served me for sunlight now monthly allowed me to receive moonlight upon the little group of objects that were placed to help me paint the effect of the lantern light mixing with that of the silvery night The ivy I had already painted and the long grass and weeds were completed, but I had made up an imitation door with adjuncts, and had placed a lay figure for the drapery, with the lantern to shine upon it duly In the day I could screen out the sun, and at night I removed the blinds to let in the moon A board in the balcony was so adjusted that from the street scarcely anything could be seen through this window, the other [illegible] my canvas by day, by night the venetians were often not quite down enough to hide the [illegible] and the easel completely I could sit at my work from 9 or 10 p m till 4 a m and this I continued till the moon no longer suited This went on for some months Once riding home on the omnibus to Chelsea the driver was [illegible] ing about the characters of an eccentric kind peculiar to the neighborhood and having spoken with amusement of Carlyle—of his solid aspect and his slow gait—he added he had been told 'as how he got his living by teaching people to write' But I'll show you a queerer character than all, if you're coming round the corner," he went on You can see him well from the 'bus He is a cove in the first floor as has a some thing standing all night at one winder while he sits down at the other, or stands and seemingly is a drawing of it He does not go to bed like other Christians but stays long after the last bus has come in, and, as the perlice tells us when the clock strikes four out goes the gas down comes the gemman, opens the street door, runs down Cheyne walk as hard as he can pelt, and when he gets to the end he turns and runs back again, opens his door, goes in and nobody sees no more of him" But that night the 'cove" was not there, as it turned out, and the driver said, with disappointment, 'Ah! it's unlucky, this ain't one o' his nights

The Artillery of the Mogul Emperors

Blackwood's Magazine

The prominent part which artillery should take in war was early understood by the Mogul emperors who collected and organized masses of guns of different calibres from the heaviest ordnance to the light camel piece and even the latest developments of the modern science of artillery on which we so much pride ourselves in the nineteenth century seem to have been anticipated in those distant days. The breech loading gun the gun which is conveyed from place to place in various portions and can be fitted together for action, were known and used by Akbar, and he must also have realized the value of the concentrated fire of artillery, if it is true as we are told, that he united together a large number of pieces and arranged that they could be discharged by one match Some enormous pieces of artillery are chronicled as having been constructed in various states of India, rivaling the monster guns of the same period which remain as relics in the old fortresses of the United Kingdom Mons Meg, which peers grimly over the castled rock of Edinburgh, is only about 13 feet long with a calibre of twenty inches while besides many others, no doubt well known guns in India the great gun long preserved at Bijapur which had been used by Aurungzebe at the capture of the place, had a calibre of 28 inches and there is an old gun lying on a cavalier in a ruined and forgotten fort at Seringapatam in Mysore, whose length is nearly 15 feet, with a calibre of 10 inches

Is Lager Beer Intoxicating?

Harper's Magazine for July

[illegible] joined his [illegible] friend [illegible] they discussed several topics together and then the question [illegible] what extent lager beer was an intoxicant [illegible] beer was not intoxicating, while his friend maintained the opposite The store [illegible] said [illegible] a man at work in the yard [illegible] [illegible] and the [illegible] that but [illegible] [illegible] sitting [illegible] "Well [illegible] you know [illegible] The German [illegible] minutes returned, and [illegible] think dot peer!" The bucket of beer was procured and placed before the German, who very soon absorbed the last drop and arose from his seat wiping his mouth with his sleeve and was walking away with a firm step when [illegible] recalled him and said to him, "See here, my friend and I have some curiosity to know why you did not drink the beer when you were first asked" The German replied, "Vell I do nod know dot I could trink it, so I yust gout und trink a bucket den I know I could do it"

Extraordinary Medical Skill

Harper's Magazine for July

One stormy night, when the roads were well nigh impassable, a son of Erin came to a doctor's office and desired the dispenser of physic to see a friend who was "just a dyin'" He would not take no for an answer, so putting the saddle-bags upon his horse the physician started out upon his journey As soon as he saw the sick man he knew it was nearly over with him, and remarked to the courier

"Peter, you tell the truth your friend is just at the point of death"

Can't ye do anything for him?" replied Peter

"No, it is too late"

But, docther, ain't ye goin' to give him anything at all at all?"

"It will do no good"

But docther, ye have come so far it would be too bad to go back without doin' anything"

For the peace of Peter's mind the doctor [illegible] took a small quantity of sugar from a phial and placed it upon the dying man's tongue just as he was drawing his last breath

Peter, seeing his friend's head drop back looked up to the doctor with big eyes and said, half in a whisper, Oh, docther, an didn't ye do it quick!"

Southern Criticism of Mr Cable

Memphis Avalanche

Recognizing his ability we have not been able to see evidences of genius except for hard work, in Mr Cable's writings If he is to live in literature it must be in something he is yet to produce He will be fortunate if he shall go beyond ten years He has but appealed to a transient curiosity at the north concerning certain phases of southern life which are general and that creole "pocket," which is not worth the working Pandering to this craving at the north he has secured the ear of all who look north for the cue to what is just precisely the thing This, however may be a matter of taste A man may detest George Eliot and revere Thackeray. Both are good and enduring Perhaps we are wholly in error as to Mr Cable's literary place We do not think that we can err as to that nice judgment which condemns the man who becomes the mouthpiece of others to speak ill of his own home All honor to the man who speaks that ill that should be spoken when he speaks it boldly and defiantly directly to his own brethren but not of them and not to others. As to this there is no room for doubt

Survivors of the Ill-Fated Command Meet on the Field,

Where Gall, the War Chief of the Sioux Indians,

Tells the Story of Gen. Custer's Last Battle.

ST PAUL June 25 — A special to the Pioneer Press from the Custer battlefield describes the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the battle by a few of its survivors. The great Sioux chief Gall went over the field and described the manner in which Custer's command was destroyed. Gall is a fine looking Indian, 49 years of age, weighing over 200 pounds. He told his story with dignity and animation. "We saw the soldiers early in the morning crossing the divide. When Reno and Custer separated we watched them until they came down into the valley. The cry was raised that the white soldiers were coming. Orders were given for the village to move immediately. Reno swept down so rapidly upon the upper end that the Indians were forced to fight. Sitting Bull and I were at the point where Reno attacked. Sitting Bull was the medicine man. The women and children were hastily moved down the stream where the Cheyennes were encamped. The Sioux attacked Reno and the Cheyennes Custer and then all became mixed up. Women and children caught horses for the bucks to mount. Then the bucks mounted and charged back on Reno, checked him and drove him into the timber. The soldiers then tied their horses to trees, came out and fought on foot. As soon as Reno was beaten and driven back across the river the whole force turned on Custer and fought him until they destroyed him. Custer did not reach the river but was met about half a mile up the ravine now called Reno creek. They fought the soldiers and beat them back step by step till all were killed. (One of Reno's officers confirms this tale. It was probably during this interval of quiet on Reno's part that the Indians massed on Custer and annihilated him.) The Indians ran out of ammunition and then used arrows. They fired from behind their horses. The soldiers got shells stuck in their guns and had to throw them away. Then they fought with little guns (pistols). The Indians were in couples behind and in front of Custer as he moved up the ridge to take position and were just as many as the grass. The first two companies (Keogh's and Calhoun's) dismounted and fought on foot. They never broke but retired step by step until forced back to a ridge, upon which all finally perished. They were shot down in line where they stood."

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by Rev. J. B. Gregg.

The leading event of the week has been the meeting in our city of the annual convention of the Colorado Sunday School association. By general agreement the meeting has been one of the most pleasant and profitable in the course of the association. The essays and addresses were along practical lines and many of them were excellent. It seems invidious among so many parts that were good to select any for special commendation. I was unable to attend all the sessions of the convention, but of those addresses which it was my good fortune to hear I may name those of Mrs. Bach of Rev G. N. Eldridge of this city, and of Dr Buchtel as being especially appropriate and strong. It is good to have one annual religious gathering which brings all denominations together in sympathetic thought and effort toward a common end.

Hardly is the Sunday school convention at an end when our citizens are summoned to another feast of good things in the arrival among us of the Rev George H. Vibbert, a lecturer on temperance who comes highly recommended by Sir Wilfred [illegible] the witty and genial baronet who by his advocacy of temperance legislation in the house of commons for the last twenty five years has made him self conspicuous and famous—commended also by Wendell Phillips and other eminent Americans. Mr Vibbert appears to be a man worth hearing by all persons who are interested in a question which is evidently coming to the front as a political as well as a social question of magnitude.

Everybody who comes from Massachusetts knows that the current designation of the Trinitarian Congregationalists is "the orthodox" to distinguish them from the Unitarians whose form of church government is also congregational but who are accounted heterodox. Our Massachusetts readers and our other readers after the foregoing explanation will appreciate the following incident clipped from the Boston Advertiser.

Hannah was a young lady from Ireland fresh caught whose first American contract for spoiling food and smashing crockery was taken [illegible] family. Her acquaintance with the English language was decidedly elementary, and [illegible] the blunders [illegible] the next pastor of the [illegible] orthodox church was passing the house one day when Hannah broke out

"If ye plaze, m'am, wasn't that wan of yer [illegible]?"

"Yes that's the orthodox minister."

"Well now, an' will ye be kind enough to tell me why ye call thim fellers wather ducks? Is it thim that bapt[illegible] ye by puttin ye in all over?"

Edward Henry Palmer was a young clerk in London when he began his eminently successful career as a linguist. He had picked up the Romany dialect as a boy from wandering gypsies and he set out to learn Italian by the most practical method. He was as busy as thousands of other clerks of whom the world has heard nothing and of whom it never will hear anything. If most of his co-workers in [illegible] and [illegible] Italian [illegible]. But [illegible] engaged in the [illegible] Hebrew [illegible] literary life. When obliged to [illegible] instead of wasting his evenings of [illegible] he frequented the Italian [illegible] talked with all classes of Italians, interested himself in Italian questions, picked up the language day by day, and finally became such a master of it that he could speak not only the language of Italy but the patois of the different ports. From that point he went on to learn French and later on to put himself in the front rank of oriental scholars. Such an example carries its own lesson with it, a lesson which most men fail to learn, and in that failure miss opportunity, advancement, influence and fortune. The men are few in any occupation who cannot add immensely to their chances of success in life by self education. The man who wastes an hour a day puts aside the resources of the intellectual life, for there are few men whose careers one hour a day of persistent knowledge seeking would not materially advantage. Most men never use their powers to the full; they go through life with faculties which, if once awakened, would lead to a greater scale their whole careers. They are servants when they might become masters, artisans when they might become artists. The unused material in life is incalculable. If it were all brought into use for a single generation, there would be a phenomenal advance of civilization. Such a result cannot now be hoped for, but there are countless individual lives in which the miracle may be wrought by a little courage, patience and self denial. Is your strength fully put forth? Are your spare hours used to intelligent purpose? Are you making the most of your opportunities?

We find in the Boston daily papers, says the Christian Union, the following report of a significant address delivered by the Rev Robert Hume, missionary of the American board in India, and the son of a missionary in India delivered at the Andover alumni dinner:

"We are looking to this seminary to help us in our missionary work in all respects. Some of us feel that we are being helped already by influence which comes from here. A full and universal atonement by Christ has its natural and logical conclusion in a universal providence through Christ. I believe that this is going to help us in our missionary work. It is not mere speculation on idle questions as to what becomes of the ancestors of those to whom we carry the gospel. It is, I can assure you from an experience of twelve years, an every day question to us, and requires an answer which it has been very difficult to give. I know I have gone home with a heavy heart and often dim eyes, because the gospel of love and mercy which I was seeking to give to these men was followed by a feeling of bitterness in their hearts because they thought it implied an eternity of sorrow for their ancestors. It is a live question, and must be met in a Christian way. I can say, not only for myself, but for a considerable number of workers in the field, that we believe there is light in this matter. It is a practical question, which we believe is going to receive from this source a more Christian and helpful solution. It has been my privilege to meet in the last few months five of the largest theological seminaries in our country. We applied to all these to help us in our work. In no one have we found more missionary spirit than in Andover, where this phase of Christian thinking is especially held. By the fruits ye may judge the tree."

It has been so long and so dogmatically asserted that the doctrine of a possible probation after death for those who have never known the mercy of God in this life cuts the nerve of missions, that a great many people are likely to think it true, for there are a great many people who accept dogmatic assertion in lieu of independent thought. Such a statement as this coming from Mr Hume may perhaps suggest another line of thought —suggest that perhaps a doctrine which presents a possibility of hope for the loved and honored dead may help the cause of missions among those to whom Christianity is to be preached, without hindering enthusiasm for missionary service in the hearts of those who are preaching. The suggestion is not ours, it comes from the missionary field, and is worthy of being pondered.

There is no uncertain ring in these words from the pen of Mr. Howells. The same tone may be heard echoing through his novels, but it is even stronger here, where it seems to come rather from the heart of the man than the pen of the author. Genius, he believes, should have its due, but the time is coming when goodness shall be held to be even greater than genius. To quote again from his noble words:

We do not despair of the day when the poor honest herd of humankind shall give universal utterance to the universal instinct, and shall hold selfish power in politics, in art, in religion, for the devil that it is, when neither its crazy pride nor its amusing vanity shall be flattered by the puissance of the "geniuses" who have forgotten their duty to the common weakness, and have abused to their own glory. In that day, we shall shudder at many monsters of passion of self-indulgence, of heartlessness, whom we still more or less openly adore for their "genius", and shall account no man worshipful whom we do not feel and know to be good. The spectacle of strenuous achievement will then not dazzle or mislead; it will not sanctify or palliate iniquity; it will only render it the more hideous and pitiable. A life at once good and great will no longer strike us as something so anomalous that we shall be tempted to question either its goodness or its greatness, and in that desirable time we shall know fully how to approach the unblotted sublimity of a career like Longfellow's. We can ask the young to teach themselves from his career not the greatness, of which he alone had the secret, but the goodness, which is open and possible to all and which no one can read his life without feeling in supreme degree.

The Exhibition at Palmer Lake

It now looks as if there would be an immense crowd at Palmer Lake on Sunday to witness the aquatic exhibition to be given by Captain Paul Boyton. Excursion trains will be run from Denver Colorado Springs, Manitou and as far east on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe as Topeka. Everybody has read of Boyton and his curious doing on the water, but perhaps very few Colorado people have seen him in these performances. At the proposed exhibition at Palmer Lake he will perform many of the wonderful things that he has done in eastern waters. He will show how to fish without a boat in the middle of the lake, how to construct a raft in the water, propulsion through water with or without paddles, sending dispatches by means of carrier [illegible] cooking and dining on the water, [illegible] from [illegible] things. He will also [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible] exhibition of his accomplishments. Mr Boyton says Palmer Lake is a splendid place for an exhibition and that he never gave an exhibition at a better point.

Alderman Hugh Fay of New York arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and was met at the depot by about twenty-five of his personal friends. Hugh tells us that he now has a "boodle," will abandon the stage and establish either a young ladies' seminary or start a ranch for the raising of bow-legged jack rabbits or white prairie dogs. He has cash to pay for a block intact or a suitable ranch and can be found at the First National bank.

Charlie, the son of Rev. E. T. Dodd, of Rochester, Pa., left his home on April 26th and has not been heard from since. At their meeting yesterday afternoon the school board opened and examined the bids that had been submitted by contractors for the erection of the two new school buildings. Bids were sent in by seven contractors, some coming from outside the city. The contract for both buildings was let to Joseph Dozier, his figures being $35,150. Mr. Dozier built the Hiller school and his work gave good satisfaction. The work is to be done as rapidly as possible but it is not expected that the buildings will be completed in time for the opening of the fall school term. They could be built within that period but not safely. A peculiar incident was that in two of the bids the figures were exactly the same.

Rev. Geo. H. Vibbert, of Boston, the distinguished lecturer on temperance, has been engaged to give a series of some six or seven free lectures in this city. Mr. Vibbert is making the tour of Colorado and giving courses of lectures in all the larger towns and cities and has been everywhere received with eminent favor. He has made for himself an enviable reputation both in America and England and comes warmly commended from both sides of the water. Wendell Phillips will be admitted to have been a good judge of an orator and Mr. Phillips wrote concerning Mr. Vibbert: "I know him well and can testify to the consummate ability with which he handles the question. Eloquent, impressive, fully informed as to all the details of the question, a man of excellent good sense in managing the argument, he will, I am sure, be a great help in this fight for order and the highest civilization." Let all citizens come out to hear this burning question thoroughly discussed by an able and eloquent man who has made it a special study. Mr. Vibbert will speak this evening at the Baptist church on "Public Opinion and Prohibition." Sunday morning he will speak at the Congregational church on "The Citizen and the Dram Shop," in the afternoon to a union Sunday school meeting at the First Presbyterian church at 3.30 o'clock, and in the evening at the Methodist church on "The Church and the Drink Curse."

BEST ROUTE EAST—THROUGH TRAINS.

Passengers for Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and all eastern points can save from four to six hours by taking what is known as Salt Lake train on D. & R. G. at 6 p. m. arriving in Denver in ample time to connect with through train on Burlington road. No change of cars from Denver to Chicago. Only line running through baggage cars: this is a decided advantage over any train leaving this city for the east in time and comfort. Sleeper accommodations reserved and tickets sold by J. M. Ellison, agent D. & R. G. R'y., Colorado Springs; George H. Crosby, general agent, F. B. Semple, travelling agent, Denver.

The shortest, quickest and best route east has always been and is now the Union Pacific, either via Kansas City or Council Bluffs. This line, unlike some of its competitors, does not advertise THROUGH BAGGAGE CARS to Chicago, for it invariably furnishes ELEGANT COACHES for the accommodation of its patrons, THROUGH SLEEPING CARS every day to Chicago, leaving Denver at 9.50 p. m., after arrival of all trains from the west. Four trains each day via this line for points east, with a choice of three different routes, all at same price. f-26-2

Another Strike!

We are now ready for business. We are not the oldest, but the youngest House in town, therefore our goods are the newest and freshest. We have the largest and most complete stock ever brought to this city. Our fancy goods are equal in quality and quantity to any house in the state. They consist of all the fine domestic and imported goods put up for the trade. We have come here to stay and for the purpose of building up a large wholesale and retail trade. Our former reputation in this city for selling goods cheap and closer margins than anybody is we think all that it is necessary for us to say on that point. At least those who will call and examine our stock and get our prices will be convinced of the truth of what we say. Our clerks will be courteous and attentive and glad to show you through our stock whether you buy or not. We will guarantee prices, both wholesale and retail, equal to any given you by Denver houses. We are sole agents for the celebrated Pine Apple Brand of hams and breakfast bacon, the choicest put up in America.

COME! COME!

And see the immense stock of furniture now arriving at the Carpenter block. These goods were bought for cash before the advance of May 1st from the largest and best manufacturers in the United States and shipped by the car load at the lowest possible freight rate. I am handling exclusively new furniture and therefore am able to offer a larger and better variety than houses handling several lines of goods.

In connection will be found a repair shop under the charge of Mr. Thos. Barber, who thoroughly understands his business, and customers can depend upon honest and first-class work.

I want the people of our city and county to come and inspect this new stock and get prices before purchasing elsewhere. I propose to handle good goods, meet all fair competition and do business honestly and hope to merit a fair share of your patronage.

Respectfully,

JOHN LENNOX.
